

I beleive that B.P.L. is a very bad idea. There is the potential for extreme interference to Amateur operators everywhere. Not to mention the potential to Military, and Local Government. The amateurs work very hard to be self policeing and to use the spectrum to the best of ability. The potential for interference is extreem. Take for instance the Amateur that uses his equipment for M.A.R.S. or traffic nets. When he uses his equipment in the normal fashion he will cause interference to the users on the b.p.l. systems and who do you think the folks in the neighbor hood will come crying to? The B.P.L. will cause extreem interference with the hf bands and make them useless for natural disasters and assisting with communications in such. Please rethink what is happening to the valuable spectrum assigned to the amateur community some we use as a secondary basis and work well with the primary users.
